ADVENTURE BACKGROUND

Cats are curious creatures . . .

A while ago, a peculiar object alighted out of the River of Sand and caused a minor stir in the Perfume District of Per-Bastet before vanishing, as stories tend to do in the spiced city. (These events are detailed in the 1st-level adventure Cat and Mouse, available separately from Kobold Press.) The object—which picked up the name grimaldin eye somewhere along the way granted its owner power over cats. What was missed at the time by everyone involved in the caper was that if there was a grimaldin eye, might there not also be a body?

"Princess" Karima Gamila doesn't miss things like that. She might be a gnoll, but she's an exceptional gnoll: she's smart, graceful, attractive (particularly to other gnolls, who fall at her feet to get her attention), and cunning. Karima's mother believed she wasn't a mortal gnoll at all but some sort of bastial child of Kawaii. This so frightened Karima's mother that she abandoned her daughter, rather than share a home with a being god, and fled into the desert. Karima was forced at an early age to become independent and resourceful and she quickly became a devoted worshiper of the very god her mother believed was her father.

When Karima heard about the grimaldin eye, her interest was roused. She sought out news and rumors about it and spoke to everyone who had any knowledge of it.

Grimalkin-BackCover

Strange Doings in the Sultan's Charnel House...

Lo! The corpse of poor, departed Scholar Zubayr, washed up on the shores of the River of Sand, lies in the charnel house...destined to become dinner for a cult of cannibals. Though distasteful in the extreme, this isn't your concern—except that Princess Karima Gamila, the most beautiful gnoll in Per-Bastet, has begged you to rescue her friend's body and help discover his fate.

Still unmoved to action? Know then, adventurer, that the Scholar was hot on the trail of lost treasure! If you can claim his body from the cult and decipher the clues he left behind, long-buried riches and powerful magic might be yours.

But nothing is simple in this city of dark wonders: others converge on the charnel house in pursuit of wealth, vengeance, or both. Can you out-fight and outwit vile cultists, undead catfolk, a cunning werecrocodile gnoll, and the deadly secrets that lie buried beneath the River of Sand?

Grimalkin is an adventure for levels 3 to 5 and fully compatible with the 5th Edition of the world's first roleplaying game. Play it as the thrilling sequel to Cat and Mouse, or as a stand-alone treasure hunt!
